

SCOTT JOHNSON

Scott Johnson is a master glass artist who has been making glass flowers since 2003. Scott started his career in 1985, following the footsteps of his father & world renowned sculptor, Snell Johnson. Snell's works include one of the largest bronze sculptures in the world, a gold lion located at the MGM Grand Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas.

Scott started his artistic pursuits in bronze, creating limited edition works. His love and curiosity for visually appealing arts led him to build a successful business creating ceramic sculptures combined with hand blown glass, which he sold after six years and began searching for other ways to express his creativity. His passion for glass and the knowledge of casting materials led him to develop extraordinary glass flower bouquets.

Scott stays in Cave Creek, Arizona, with his wife, Shawn and six beautiful children. Together, Scott and Shawn have poured their creative energy and hard work into making hand blown glass flowers. Working from a home studio, they enjoy spending time with their family and working together to build a successful business.
